Goalies, Forwards Favored

Rookie Bumpers Ignored

By GEORGE FRAJKOR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

There are six rookie defencemen in the National Hockey League this year, which means at least six players doomed to comfortable obscurity for a few more years.

It is practically impossible, it seems, for a defenceman to get recognition in his first year. None has ever won the Calder Memorial Trophy, which since 1936 has been awarded to the player judged the year's most promising rookie. Six goalies and 16 forwards have won it.

A great number of great defencemen have come to the league and gone since the 1936-37 season, but apparently no one knew it when they came.

Such outstanding defencemen as Emile (Butch) Bouchard (now retired); Tom Johnson and Doug Harvey of Montreal Canadiens; Red Kelly and Marcel Pronovost of Detroit Red Wings; Bill Gadsby of New York Rangers, and Fern Flaman of Boston Bruins all were overshadowed in their rookie NHL years.

Hockey observers say they see signs of talent in some of this year's rookie rearguards, most noticeably in Toronto's Carl Brewer, Detroit's Peter Goegan and New York's John Hanna.

But in the Calder Trophy balloting for the first half of the season, none but Brewer came anywhere near winning anything. Brewer polled 17 votes and tied for fourth with left wing Ab McDonald of Montreal Canadiens. Hanna drew five votes, and was last in balloting.

Some hockey observers lean to the theory that defencemen develop later than forwards or goalies, that no matter how good they later become, they just aren't that good in their first season.

Others say it's simply a matter of vision. In a hockey game, all eyes are on the man who shoots the puck and the man who stops it. The defenceman's quiet in-between work, invaluable as it is, isn't noticed.

Because defencemen are so often overlooked the James Norris Memorial Trophy which is awarded to the year's best defenceman was established in 1953.

At least that's one thing they can shoot for.

All NHL teams are in action tonight — Toronto plays at Montreal, New York at Detroit and Chicago at Boston.

America's Cup Challenge?

Yachting's Prize Sought by Aussies

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The fabulous Livingstone brothers of Australia say they're planning to make a challenge for the America's Cup and United States yachtsmen had better take them seriously.

These wealthy bachelor brothers have bought a shipyard in Sydney. They have made preliminary plans to import a team of the best ship builders in Britain. And they are tapping the brains of the world's top yacht designers.

"When we first got the idea we started work on a 10-year plan," said John Livingstone, the younger of the two. "We expect to make a challenge by 1963, but we are certain another challenge—by England—will be made prior to that, probably in 1961."

John and his brother Frank, in their mid 50s, own a 20,000-acre sheep ranch at Mount Gambier, between Melbourne and Adelaide. They also own properties in Queensland and the Northern Territory.

The Livingstones probably will spend $500,000 preparing to challenge for the famous trophy which Britain's Sceptre failed to win off Newport, R.I., last summer.

Already they have made two trips around the world inspecting shipyards, viewing models and interviewing designers.

The Livingstones believe their challenge will be made with a boat larger than the 12-metre class, under which the historic event was staged last year. Prior to 1958 much larger yachts raced for the America's Cup.
